Overview

Private voluntary organizations (PVOs)<sup>1</sup> are vital development partners working independently and alongside the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID). The Voluntary Foreign Aid Programs: Report of Voluntary Agencies Engaged in Overseas Relief and Development (VolAg Report) presents an annual overview of their work. As of November 1, 2004, 509 U.S. PVOs and 54 international PVOs were registered and in full compliance with USAID. This report provides insight to each of these PVOs, summarizing their mission, program activities across different sectors and countries, and key financial information.

The Voluntary, Autonomous Nature of PVOs

USAID views PVOs as partners in carrying out long-term sustainable development and humanitarian relief activities. USAID recognizes the independent mission of PVOs as well as their role in implementing USAID's programs. By joining forces, USAID and PVOs can do more together than either could accomplish alone.

One of the challenges inherent in such a partnership is achieving the right mixture of collaboration and independence between public and private spheres. A healthy degree of separation between the two is essential for the unique mission of each, but cooperation is also critical to the vitality of both. Thus, interdependence is the cornerstone of the USAID-PVO partnership. In keeping with USAID's emphasis on public-private partnerships, U.S. PVOs registered and supported by USAID are encouraged to contribute non-U.S. Government resources to cost-share with USAID-funded activities.

Voluntary Agencies: A Tradition of Support for Humanitarian and Development Assistance

USAID recognizes the significant role that PVOs play in providing humanitarian and development assistance in developing and transition countries. Although the PVOs registered with USAID vary markedly in size, scope, and capability, they share a strong commitment to improving the quality of life for people in need. In its work overseas, the PVO community demonstrates the traditional American values of pluralism, voluntary action, and concern for others. PVOs foster sustainable self-help efforts at the community level, providing programs that directly broaden the participation of the poorest citizens in the social and economic decisions that affect their daily lives.

The involvement of U.S. PVOs in humanitarian aid began decades ago in response to natural disasters and the social consequences of war. As a result of their ability to respond quickly and effectively, PVOs emerged as leaders in disaster relief. Gradually, their efforts broadened from relief and emergency food distribution to longer-term, more sustainable development programs designed to address the root causes of poverty and disaster mitigation. This transition from short-term relief to long-term development programs strengthened the cooperation between USAID and the PVO community that had been growing since the 1970s. Today, many PVOs are engaged in both short-term relief and longer-term development programs. The effort to bridge the gaps among humanitarian, transition, and development assistance is increasingly important to USAID programs and, in particular, to crisis mitigation. PVOs have the skills, experience, and innovative approaches to help address these priorities.

While continuing to respond to human needs in emergency situations, PVOs increasingly contribute their private resources to development activities essential to helping people in the developing world improve their quality of life. The development programs operated by PVOs promote broad-based economic growth and a more sustainable environment. PVOs also foster human capacity development, focusing on the attainment of health and education levels required for all citizens to contribute to, and benefit from, economic development. Their work encourages pluralism and the emergence of democratic institutions.

A Shared Basis for Collaboration

PVOs and USAID pursue shared priorities aimed at achieving effective sustainable development. Although the objectives of PVOs are not identical to those of USAID, their work contributes to the achievement of USAID's priorities in economic growth, agriculture, trade, natural resource management, education, health and population, and democracy and governance, as well as humanitarian assistance, food security, conflict and transition assistance, local nongovernment organization (NGO) strengthening, and gender and public-private alliances.

In coming years, USAID will continue to emphasize programs that build strong, free-market economies; stimulate agricultural development; support democratic participation and transparent, effective governance systems; encourage broad-based public education; and promote health and well-being. USAID supports strengthened partnerships between and among PVOs and their local NGO partners. By helping to build the organizational capacity of local partners across multiple sectors, PVOs are making a critical contribution to sustainable development. USAID's partnerships with PVOs and NGOs help to ensure active local involvement in the development and delivery of responses to needs and concerns across all sectors.

Leveraging Private Resources for Development

PVOs make a vital contribution to USAID's foreign assistance programs. As data presented in this report indicate, the private resources devoted to international development by the PVO community exceed U. S. Government support. During fiscal year 2003, registered U.S. PVOs received $12.7 billion in annual private support. This was more than five times the amount they received in USAID support, which totaled $2.2 billion. Other U.S. Government agencies and international organizations provided an additional $2.1 billion, bringing the total support and revenue to $17 billion. For a detailed breakdown of support and revenue sources, see page 133.

New Policies, Simplified Procedures Strengthen USAID/PVO Collaboration

USAID continues to reform its operating systems. These reforms facilitate improved development performance by emphasizing core values,<sup>2</sup> simplifying administrative procedures, and eliminating unnecessary layers of bureaucracy.

In recent years, USAID has simplified PVO registration, grants competition, and administrative procedures. These and other ongoing reforms allow PVOs to focus on development work rather than unnecessary micromanagement or unproductive paperwork. The USAID Automated Directives System (ADS), which is available online at the USAID Web site at www.usaid.gov Keyword: ADS, outlines USAID policies and procedures. Chapter 303—Grants and Cooperative Agreements—provides important information for the PVO community. Input from PVOs assisted USAID with revising ADS 303. Interested parties are also encouraged to visit USAID's Procurement Web site for pertinent information on doing business with the Agency at www.usaid.gov Keyword: Procurement.

USAID has also reformed its cost-sharing policy, which was revised as a result of input from USAID and PVOs. The Acquisition and Assistance Policy on cost sharing in grants and cooperative agreements can be found in the Acquisition and Assistance Policy Directives (AAPDs) section of the USAID Web site at www.usaid.gov Keyword: AAPDs.

USAID's Web site is a comprehensive and accessible resource for PVO partners. In addition to the ADS and procurement information, the following can also be found on the Web site: press releases, the USAID telephone directory, the "Results-Oriented Assistance: A USAID Sourcebook," and a directory of USAID awards (the Yellow Book). USAID's Development Experience Clearinghouse located at www.dec.org provides a searchable database of Agency reports and evaluations.

USAID's Office of PVC-ASHA: A Contact Point for PVOs, Competitive PVO Grant Programs

USAID Missions based overseas—together with regional and central bureaus located in Washington—provide the bulk of support for PVOs. The Office of Private Voluntary Cooperation-American Schools and Hospitals Abroad (PVC-ASHA) is the central point of contact for PVOs and focuses on issues important to maintaining and strengthening relationships among USAID, PVOs, and local NGOs.

The merger between PVC and ASHA in early 2003 broadened the Office's scope. In addition to its other duties, PVC-ASHA now provides PVOs with grant opportunities to strengthen American schools, libraries, and hospital centers abroad to demonstrate U.S. advancements in education and medicine.

PVC-ASHA's five-year strategy, approved in late 2002, articulates important program changes that will guide its work with PVOs and local NGOs. PVC-ASHA continues to administer competitive grant programs to support its strategic objectives and is drawing on its grant experience to help create a USAID Learning Center. Through this USAID Learning Center, PVC-ASHA will disseminate grant and organizational information on best practices, tools, and techniques for organizational effectiveness, accountability, and sustainability. In addition, PVC-ASHA's research program draws on the rich organizational development and community-based experience of PVOs and NGOs.

PVC-ASHA continues to manage U.S. and international PVO registration at USAID. All of PVC-ASHA's competitive grant programs are described on its Web site at www.usaid.gov Keyword: PVC-ASHA.

This document, commonly referred to as the VolAg Report, is the culmination of one year's effort by PVC-ASHA staff to collect, validate, and disseminate a clear, factual report about the PVO community. We hope you find it a useful reference.

Gives people the financial tools they need to work their way out of poverty. By providing microloans, business training, and other financial services to poor women and men who start their own businesses, ACCION's microlending partners help people work their way up the economic ladder with dignity and pride. ACCION seeks to bring this opportunity to as many of the world's poor as possible by developing microlending institutions that are financially self-sustaining and capable of reaching billions of people. In the past decade, ACCION programs have disbursed $5.8 billion in microloans to more than 3.2 million borrowers, 65 percent of whom are women. Ninety-seven percent of these loans have been paid back. In 2003 alone, ACCION partners put $1.2 billion into the hands of the poor in 18 countries in Latin America, the Caribbean, and sub-Saharan Africa, and in more than 30 U.S. cities and towns.

Obtains and distributes quality supplies and funds to meet the nutritional, health care, housing, and educational needs of poverty-stricken children, women, and the elderly in Nicaragua. ANF works to improve the service delivery and technical capacity of a network of 1,400 prescreened, accountable local nongovernmental organizations that specialize in relief and development. Often, these partner organizations provide the only means to self-sufficiency or survival for the underprivileged people they serve. ANF welcomes partnerships with other U.S.-based organizations interested in sharing its structure to aid the people of Nicaragua.

Promotes permanency planning for children—first, in their own countries and within their own cultures; then, if that is not possible, through international adoption. Bethany's philosophy is to provide development support to existing programs in the country or to partner with in-country programs. The country then develops a new program that assists children and families and prevents institutionalization of children. Bethany provides counseling services, adoption, temporary foster care, and medical care. The organization also works in partnership with the government to ensure sustainability when Bethany's work is completed. Bethany pursues these goals through educational partnerships with universities, sending volunteers to the field, hiring qualified indigenous people, and providing local training programs.

Endeavors to improve the health and living conditions of the poorest population in South Asia, primarily in India and Nepal. Since 1992, TBP of the International Health Organization (IHO) has worked to advocate, develop, and implement rural health programs that are integrated with rural development programs. TBP strongly believes that isolated attempts to “treat” diseases in these populations cannot be successful unless the accompanying problems of abject poverty and the total environment that surrounds and perpetuates it are addressed. TBP’s programs concentrate on environmental health, community health, and vocational training and health education of women. TBP works within the strictures of the prevailing circumstances and applicable laws.

Heals human hurts through relief and development programs. A necessary condition for development is to initially address the emergency needs of the hurting families and then provide the technical assistance, training, and other material resources needed to help them develop sustainable, income-generating skills as relief needs abate. FMPCC provides food, medical supplies, and emergency relief services to people suffering as a result of severe drought, flooding, famine, or other natural disasters in the Philippines, Africa, and Central America. FMPCC builds, operates, and supports child survival centers, schools, orphanages, and medical clinics. FMPCC operates 60 food projects and a food cooperative volunteer program that addresses the rural hunger needs of Native Americans.

Helps indigenous peoples control and develop their assets and build the capacity to direct their economic futures in ways that fit their cultures. Indigenous issues are global, yet significant problem solving happens locally, where indigenous cultures play a critical role in providing solutions. Accordingly, First Nations, through its international arm, First Peoples Worldwide, follows a dual approach in its international projects. This approach means that First Nations generates advocacy and development capacity through its work at local field sites. It also supports, through a cross section of socially responsible investment venues, a corporate engagement strategy, information technology, and international networks.

Supports organizations in their provision of hospice and palliative care in sub-Saharan Africa through its programs and technical assistance. FHSSA's vision is that all people with HIV/AIDS in sub-Saharan Africa will receive dignified end-of-life care and family support. One of FHSSA's primary programs is the Twinning Initiative, which matches individual African hospice programs with U.S. hospice "twins." The goal of the partnerships is to form mutually beneficial relationships that lead to an exchange of expertise and insight, and to have U.S. hospices provide avenues of funding and other forms of assistance to their African hospice twins. To date, more than 40 twinning matches have been made.

Provides small loans to the working poor in 22 countries, enabling them to increase their income and protect their families from malnutrition and severe poverty. The poor access these loans through village banking groups, self-managed solidarity groups of 10 to 50 low-income neighbors who receive three essential services: (1) self-employment loans as low as $20; (2) a savings plan to create their own working capital; and (3) group support for personal and community empowerment. As of June 2004, FINCA was assisting more than 300,000 borrowers organized into 20,000 village banking groups, as well as 13,000 individual borrowers in the Americas, Africa, Asia, and Eastern Europe. As of June 2004, FINCA held an outstanding loan balance of nearly $64,000,000, and maintained excellent portfolio quality.

Provides wheelchairs and mobility aids to disabled persons living in poverty in developing countries. Hope Haven is an innovative, volunteer-intensive, and cost-effective program that collects discarded wheelchairs, and refurbishes and delivers them to poor people in 95 countries. Wheelchairs are the critical starting point for empowering the world's most dependent citizens, providing access to education, job training, and income. The organization also manufactures new pediatric wheelchairs for children with severely disabling conditions, as the supply of children's wheelchairs doesn't meet the overwhelming need. In addition to providing free wheelchairs, Hope Haven offers global leadership through a network of individuals, relief agencies, and government leaders to address the needs of the estimated 20 to 100 million people with disabilities worldwide.

Works to improve the lives of women in poverty, advance women’s equality and human rights, and contribute to the broader economic and social well-being. To achieve its goals, ICRW works with researchers, policymakers, practitioners, and others on issues affecting women’s economic, health, and social status in low- and middle-income countries. ICRW’s multicultural staff conducts policy-oriented research and policy advocacy efforts and builds capacity. The organization’s staff members work in five technical teams that target poverty reduction and economic growth, HIV/AIDS, reproductive health and nutrition, population and social transition, and policy and communications. ICRW has two field offices in India.

Continues to expand its services in new countries and to provide education, clinical services, and updated equipment in its host countries. During the past year, ICHF has provided cardiac surgery to more than 225 children in seven countries: Belarus, China, Colombia, Croatia, Nicaragua, Nigeria, and Peru. ICHF has donated in excess of $1,500,000 in medical goods and services. ICHF's education programs in Memphis, Tennessee, and abroad have involved more than 500 physicians, nurses, and technicians. ICHF believes that such a program is beneficial to the health and welfare of far more children with heart disease than those for whom it merely provides operations. The education ICHF gives to its colleagues and the equipment it donates to these countries continue to help the children even after ICHF has departed.

International Christian Adoptions

Institute For Children's Aid (ICA)

Improves the lives of the rural poor in developing nations through agricultural and economic development. IDE views rural farmers as entrepreneurs capable of producing high-value crops with the right help. IDE empowers rural farmers to pull themselves out of poverty by providing essential tools, such as training, technologies, capital, and market entry. The organization focuses on water as a starting point for alleviating poverty. Simple, low-cost water technologies improve agricultural production and increase market participation. IDE's efforts have resulted in some 2 million families having access to low-cost water technologies. These technologies have enabled families to become more efficient agricultural producers, increasing their annual net income by between $100 and $1,000.

Improves the lives of children, adults, and families affected by migration and international and humanitarian crises. ISS-USA provides social work services, promotes advances in service and knowledge, and advocates for laws and policies that guarantee the rights and protection of migrants. ISS-USA renders service to individuals whose problems are connected with travel or migration and may be solved by coordinated action in more than one country. The organization studies, from an international standpoint, the conditions and consequences of migration and their effects on individual, family, and community life.

ISS-USA informs professionals and the public of the needs of migrant individuals and families, and develops and maintains an international network to meet the needs of those who require ISS-USA services.

Advances a culture of peace and democracy in conflict-prone countries by training local leaders as community development peace interns. These local leaders are poor, displaced, and belong to groups in conflict. Local entry-level educators and nongovernmental organization (NGO) workers intern at IFP Tents of the People community training sites, which are huts, schools, NGO centers, or actual tents. Development relief projects are designed through communal consultations with the poor, youth parliaments, and advisory councils. Projects economically empower women and the poor and teach tolerance, turning youth from hatred to intercommunal reconstruction and reconciliation. IFP trains leaders in the Middle East, southeastern Europe, Asia, Africa, and the Americas.

Increases life span and reduces infant and maternal mortality among impoverished Bolivians by redistributing medical surplus from the United States to Bolivian health care programs, where the supplies literally mean the difference between life and death. Mano a Mano builds clinics in collaboration with impoverished rural communities and then teaches community members to operate them, thereby creating a health care infrastructure in areas that were previously underserved. In addition, Mano a Mano improves sanitary conditions and diet to promote wellness by helping communities construct public bathrooms, showers, laundry facilities, and greenhouses. The organization improves schools and roads to create a safer, healthier environment in which learning and economic development can occur.

Dedicates itself to the principles of self-reliance and sustainable community development. Empowers individuals, families, and communities to free themselves from extreme poverty by providing training and support within five main areas: AIDS prevention, education/health, family-based orphan care, micro-enterprise, and water/agriculture. These areas are addressed through Community Development Center Models. Centers are developed when residents come together to work for the good of all in the community. In 12 African countries, the organization strives to help develop the capacity of nongovernmental organizations and partnering affiliates. Reach the Children is endorsed by the Economic Community of West African States. Active in U.N. programs, the organization has Economic and Social Council accreditation in the United Nations and takes a pro-child, pro-family stance as it consistently fights against poverty.

Promotes social, economic, and rural development in Lebanon and supports the creation of a responsible civil society that will consolidate national unity and contribute to a sustainable peace. The foundation was created in Lebanon in 1990 by Nayla Moawad, widow of the late president of Lebanon, Réne Moawad, and established in the United States in 1993. RMF responds to the most crucial social problems that face Lebanon today by providing medical assistance to the poor through its three clinics and by promoting development through the Agricultural Center of the North, which creates small cottage industries and provides farmers with technical and mechanical support. The organization's Center for Research and Education on Democracy undertakes numerous civil-society building projects, including a quarterly publication, Hurriyat (which means "freedoms") and annual workshops and conferences.

Operates an extensive range of humanitarian and development assistance programs in Viet Nam with its sister organization Health and Education Volunteers. This includes providing prosthetic and orthotic devices and rehabilitation services to needy people in Viet Nam, with a major focus on reaching needy people with disabilities in rural areas through outreach visits. To date, VNAH has provided some 80,000 poor Vietnamese with assistive devices. Equally important are VNAH's efforts to improve policies and programs for disabled people through technical assistance and training to the Viet Nam government. These efforts have led to the Viet Nam government enacting a progressive national ordinance on disability, modeled after U.S. law, as well as a national barrier-free design code and standards.

Helps improve the lives of people in Africa and Asia who bear the greatest burden of poverty. FVI uses cutting-edge digital satellite technology to bypass illiteracy, geographic isolation, and inadequate infrastructure, and bring vital “first voice” programs to information-starved communities. FVI achieves this through its award-winning digital broadcast and multimedia services. FVI provides locally relevant information that helps people make informed decisions about issues critical to their survival and progress. FVI is a conduit for the harnessing and dissemination of knowledge and a partner of African and Asian communities, which facilitates indigenous people’s participation in the global debate about the advancement of humanity.

Zoological Society of Milwaukee County

Private Voluntary Organizations

Summary of Activities and Privateness Percentages (FY 2003)

The U.S. private voluntary organizations (PVOs) presented vary in size from several thousand dollars to several million dollars in support and revenue from private, U.S. Government, international agencies, and in-kind donations. For the past several years, the Foreign Assistance Appropriations Act has included the following provision regarding PVOs.

None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act for development assistance may be made available to any United States private voluntary organization, except any cooperative development organization, which obtains less than 20 percent of its total annual funding for international activities from sources other than the United States Government.*

The 20-percent requirement does not apply to the following:

- Non-U.S. PVOs
- Cooperative Development Organizations (CDO)
- Economic Support Funds (ESF), Disaster Assistance, or Other Non-Development Assistance (DA) Sources of Funding.

n/o No overseas programs

* The Privateness Percentage computation is based on overseas expenses reported by the PVO on its financial statements. This percentage excludes expenses for USAID-initiated activities.

Works in approximately 40 countries on 5 continents with teams of fieldworkers bringing together more than 320 professionals, including specialists in the fields of nutrition, agriculture, water and sanitation, and public health. A group of journalists and intellectuals created ACH in Paris in 1979. ACH relies on the skills of its local teams of nearly 4,500 people to develop programs that are well adapted to the needs of its beneficiaries. ACH's prime objective is to assist the most vulnerable and, secondly, to raise public awareness in industrialized countries about the scale of hunger. Ultimately, ACH aims to enable the beneficiaries to regain their autonomy and self-sufficiency as soon as possible.

Action Contre La Faim

ACF

Mr. Benoit Miribel, Executive Director

4, rue Niepce

Fights hunger by providing emergency assistance and by linking relief and development in five areas of expertise—nutrition, food security, health, disaster preparedness, and water sanitation. ACF intervenes, whether during a crisis through emergency programs, or after a crisis through rehabilitation programs. ACF also integrates a disaster-preparedness approach designed to reduce vulnerability and to strengthen capacities of local communities to respond to crises. Together with its three sister organizations, ACF works in 40 countries worldwide. The organization also engages in public education and advocacy efforts relating to hunger issues around the world.

ActionAid

Mr. Feisal Hussain,

WEB: www.actionaid.org

Works with the poor and marginalized people to eradicate poverty by overcoming the injustice and inequity that cause it. ActionAid, the third largest development agency in the United Kingdom, addresses the root causes of poverty and improves the quality of lives. The organization tackles the causes and effects of absolute poverty through long-term development programs and influencing work. ActionAid works directly with local communities and organizations, helping to ensure that basic needs are met, promoting basic rights as the focus in all its work, and providing emergency assistance when necessary. ActionAid, based in London, works through local organizations in more than 30 countries in Africa, Asia, Latin America, and the Caribbean and has a lobbying office in Washington, D.C. There are ActionAid organizations in France, Greece, Ireland, Italy, and Spain.

Works for the promotion of respiratory health and the eradication of tuberculosis (TB). Established in 1900 to control the spread of TB and provide better services for TB patients nationally, CLA now leads and participates in national and international research, prevention, education, and advocacy initiatives. As Canada's constituent member of the International Union Against Tuberculosis and Lung Disease, and the secretariat of the Stop TB/Canada Initiative, CLA makes important contributions to the global fight against tuberculosis. CLA's Strengthening the National Tuberculosis Program in Ecuador project is a recognized model for the implementation of international standard TB control in middle-income countries.

Canadian Physicians for Aid and Relief CPAR

Implements projects in Ethiopia, Malawi, Tanzania, and Uganda. Formed in 1984, CPAR is a nonsectarian organization inspired by the vision of a healthy planet; health is broadly defined to include human well-being, environmental integrity, and social justice. CPAR works in the areas of primary health care, water and sanitation, food security, natural resource management, reproductive health, HIV/AIDS, economic development, peace building, mine-risk education, and emergency assistance including food aid. CPAR engages Canadians through development education. The organization employs approximately 175 people in Canada, Ethiopia, Malawi, Tanzania, and Uganda.

WEB: www.childadvocacyinternational.co.uk

Improves health care for children worldwide with a focus on war-torn and impoverished countries. Founded in 1995 by leading pediatricians in the United Kingdom, CAI complements other agencies and works with local people to develop hospital-based and tertiary care for the sickest infants and children. Such services are essential to the development of effective health care provisions accessible to the majority of the population in many poor countries. CAI campaigns for family rights—as outlined in international law and convention—in disadvantaged countries and areas of armed conflict, with the specific intention of promoting the well-being and protection of children.

Supports the poorest communities in their struggle to achieve a better life. The official relief and development agency of 40 British and Irish churches, Christian Aid works in more than 60 countries worldwide. The organization addresses the root causes of poverty through advocacy, campaigning, and education. Christian Aid tells the stories of those communities, the realities they face, and the work that they and Christian Aid achieve together. Christian Aid raises funds for the world's poorest people and works overseas with some of the world's poorest communities—be they Christian, of various faiths, or people who do not claim a particular belief.

Works with people in need, especially refugees, displaced people, and children who are suffering by reason of background, war, or poverty. CORD is a caring, Christian-based, nongovernmental organization characterized by a Christian ethos, professionalism, and concern for the underprivileged. Although much of CORD's work is operational, the organization encourages self-reliance and the strengthening of local structures, emphasizing personal empowerment even within refugee and emergency settings. CORD, a signatory to the Red Cross Code of Conduct and the European Union's Nongovernmental Development Organizations' Charter, works in partnership with the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, other U.N. organizations, and the Netherlands-based ZOA Refugee Care.

Promotes cooperation projects in the world's southern countries and in emergency situations in Africa, South America, Asia, and the Balkans. COSV aims to reinforce and sustain development processes in particular developing regions of the world through an integral and multidisciplinary approach that concerns various intervention areas such as health and sanitation, agriculture, vocational training, rehabilitation and habitat, productive projects, education, and peace building. All programs further local participation from the beginning by improving life conditions of outcast groups and harmonizing social economic development. These programs create the necessary conditions for intervention sustainability after funding from international aid agencies has ceased.

Alleviates poverty through supporting relief, rehabilitation, and development initiatives. DAI, an international Christian organization, prefers to work with local partners instead of operationally. In relief work, DAI responds to man-made and natural disasters by providing food, water, clothing, medical help, and temporary shelter. Rehabilitation programs are designed to help displaced people resettle and focus on trauma counseling. In development, the focus is on building the self-reliance of the poor. The sectors for DAI's development work include food security, education, water, health, housing, and economic development. Women and children are given special attention, as they are often more vulnerable to poverty.

Contributes to building peace by reporting news that is useful, factual, and impartial to populations who are victims of violence or natural disaster and are otherwise cut off from independent media reports. Reporting impartial, independent, factual information professionally can help develop the conditions necessary for war-torn countries to return to peace and democracy. Media for Peace and Human Dignity grew out of a 1994 initiative by Swiss journalists who launched Radio Agatashya in the aftermath of the Rwandan genocide. The organization has operated similar radio projects in the Central African Republic, Democratic Republic of the Congo, Kosovo, Liberia, Tanzania, and East Timor.

Works with forest communities, small-holder farmers, and pastoralists in Africa. Founded in 1985, FARM-Africa is expanding its rural development work in Ethiopia, Kenya, Tanzania, Uganda, and South Africa. In all its programs, FARM-Africa emphasizes working in partnership with communities, community-based organizations, local and international private voluntary organizations, and government ministries. These partnerships facilitate the process of innovation, information dissemination, and, ultimately, practice and policy advocacy grounded in grassroots rural development. FARM-Africa has an International Board and a FARM-USA Board, 150 African staff members in Africa, and 18 other staff members in its U.K. office. It also has a supporters network, Friends-of-FARM, which is comprised of 22 groups with 130 total members. Annual income has risen steadily to approximately $9 million in 2004.

Works with conflict-affected communities in Afghanistan, Angola, Cambodia, Chad, the Democratic Republic of Congo, Iraq, Laos, Lebanon, Sri Lanka, Sudan, and Vietnam that are affected by the danger of landmines and unexploded ordnance (UXO). All of MAG’s work has a humanitarian focus, with the priority of reducing the impact of contamination on the people most at risk, rather than a certain number of landmines/UXO removed. MAG clears land desperately needed for agriculture, housing, schools, market, and water access, and facilitates the rebuilding of national infrastructure and communication networks.

MAG is committed to involving communities in identifying and prioritizing their own needs, and in the building of local capacities.

Works to secure the just and peaceful transformation of violent conflict. Established as an international nongovernmental organization in 1985, IA works at national, regional, and global levels to enhance the capacity of individuals and peace networks, constituencies, and organizations to build sustainable peace. IA uses experience and knowledge of violent conflict to advocate policy changes that would address and contribute to the eradication of the root causes and symptoms of violence. In 2003, IA was involved in more than 40 projects in 15 African, Eurasian, and Asian societies. IA focuses on five specific global thematic issues: business, development, security, gender, and religion. IA's work is based on strong partnerships with local organizations, high-quality and shared conflict analysis, and rigorous adherence to codes of conduct.

Improves the well-being of vulnerable populations in developing countries by improving animal health and production, while promoting animal welfare and protecting the environment. Activities are developed in consultation with local communities and organizations through dialogue and advocacy, both in a development and emergency context. In all projects the local population is part of the design, implementation, evaluation, and decision making. Programs supported by VSF-Belgium have a strong capacity-building focus to ensure that local actors can continue the activities when VSF-Belgium leaves. VSF-Belgium welcomes cooperation with public or private organizations and local groups. The organization aims to raise awareness in Europe regarding the international situation, and to increase understanding, consciousness, and solidarity. VSF-Belgium is a founding member of the VSF-Europa network.

Works in the field of international development. Incorporated in 1957, WUSC is governed by a volunteer board of directors that brings together representatives from educational institutions, training organizations, WUSC alumni, and campus-based committees from across Canada. During the past decade, WUSC has evolved into one of the largest Canadian nongovernmental organizations involved in the implementation of technical assistance and training programs. Since 1978, WUSC has provided approximately 2,500 person-years of assistance to developing countries and administered 5,000 person-years of academic and practical training programs. In partnership with the Canadian Centre for International Studies and Cooperation (CECI), WUSC acts as the Canadian recruitment agency for the U.N. Volunteer Program.

Helps societies torn apart by war to overcome conflict and to build lasting peace. WSP does this by promoting processes of consultation, research, and analysis with all sectors of society, including international assistance agencies and donors. WSP uses participatory research to enable everyone concerned to identify common challenges to peace and reach consensus on solutions and priorities. WSP works in partnership with the United Nations and draws its strength from a close network of country teams, partners, and friends with shared values and a commitment to building lasting peace. Through experience, WSP has learned that peace is sustainable only if it is forged by all parties involved in a conflict, with local actors playing the main role, and if it is based on understanding, trust, and a common vision for the future.
